3. Curriculum Implementation

- 3.1. The School believes that a carefully planned and structured curriculum is the foundation upon which excellent learning and development is built. The curriculum is designed and implemented in such a way that it builds on prior knowledge and prepares pupils for the next stage in their education. Leaders and teachers ensure that lessons are engaging and suitably differentiated so that pupil spend an appropriate amount of time in lesson working independently at their level of ability. Development of language and building knowledge are integral to curriculum planning. Subject Leaders, who are experts in their subjects, carefully construct a curriculum that promotes a deep understanding of a wide range of topics. Teachers plan learning that allows pupils to embed and recall knowledge through techniques such as interleaving of topics and spaced practice. This builds firm foundations for progression to the next level and exam success.
 - 3.1.1. The School curriculum in Year 7 and 8 is based upon, but not restricted to, the National Curriculum with significant time allocated not only to core subjects but also to the arts and languages.
 - 3.1.2. Options choices are made in Year 8 with GCSE courses beginning in year 9. This allows a broadening of the curriculum with a wider range of subjects available, most of which are a “Free Choice” with subjects allocated to blocks to fit with pupil choice. The School is committed to languages for all in Key Stage 4. However, there is a recognition that the aim of languages for all is to develop language skills and cultural awareness. Therefore, pupils will have the choice between the academic rigour of GCSE or a more accessible vocational course. Where a pupil has joined the School after the Key Stage 4 courses have started, a pupil who has not been studying a language previously may not have to fulfil this requirement as long as the Assistant Headteacher (Curriculum) is satisfied that there is appropriate alternative provision available for the pupil.

- 3.1.3. In the Sixth Form, all students have a free choice of academic and vocational courses, with the additional option of the Extended Project Qualification also on offer.
- 3.2. All subjects have carefully mapped curricula, that creates opportunities to build on previously learnt skills and develop rich knowledge to deepen pupils’ understanding of key concepts. Their analytical skills should be developed so they can apply their knowledge effectively. There are many opportunities built into lessons to secure the need to recall and retrieve previous learning and apply this knowledge to new ideas and novel situations so that knowledge is fully embedded.
- 3.3. Curriculum maps show where individual subjects cover the knowledge, skills and concepts needed for a broader understanding of Personal Social Health Economic (PSHE) Education, Social Moral Spiritual Cultural (SMSC) and Fundamental British Values (FBV). These are augmented by an extensive tutorial and assembly programme, dedicated Health Education lessons in Years 9 and 10, regular participation in national events such as mock elections and Remembrance Day, and events unique to the School such as Thomas Mills Day. All pupils have a personal development record which they complete during tutorial time.
- 3.4. The School is committed to promoting pupils’ physical and emotional health. The curriculum ensures that, whilst the time dedicated to PE varies in different years, it averages over Key Stage 3 and Key Stage 4 as over 2 hours.
- 3.5. The subject curriculums are designed to be engaging and to enthuse pupils. These are augmented by an extensive extra-curricular programme and educational visits are encouraged and supported. Visits are often used to promote a wider appreciation of culture and the natural world as well as develop resilience, leadership and broaden horizons.
- 3.6. The curriculum model ensures that no pupils is excluded from a subject or experience by reason of educational need, disability or disadvantage. Whilst there are options which are more accessible for students with specific learning needs, these are optional and the final decision as to which course to follow at both Key Stage 3 and 4 rests with the pupil. Where pupils are at a financial disadvantage, funds are allocated to allow them to participate in the wider curriculum through instrumental lessons and School trips fund. There are bursaries and grants available for students in the Sixth Form. All teachers are expected to use the detailed advice supplied by the SENCo and his team to guide their teaching. Additional support is provided for those pupils who benefit from extra input and help.
- 3.7. The School curriculum is academically demanding, and pupils are set high, aspirational targets. Regular assemblies both from Senior Leaders and Heads of Year re-emphasise these high expectations.
- 3.8. The curriculum covers a wide range of subjects at both Keys Stage 3 and 4. There is also an emphasis on developing the whole child as the School promotes a wide range of cultural experiences. As pupils progress up the School there is increasing opportunity to take a leadership role both through subject specific opportunities such as Language Leaders and Sports Leaders and through the pastoral system including School council, the Prefect System, and the House System. The Head Student Team take an active role in assemblies and School events.

- 3.9. The subject leaders ensure their curricula ensure pupils' start to take an increasing role in their own learning. Teachers are encouraged to set open-ended tasks and give feedback which allows pupils to re-visit their work and develop their understanding further. Time is allocated during the year for the School's extensive Duke of Edinburgh scheme and an Activities Week to further develop independence, resilience and leadership.
- 3.10. The School recognises the importance of literacy and numeracy in creating pathways for lifelong learning and employment. The development of pupil language and oracy is at the forefront of our curriculum as we understand how vital it is for our pupils to build confidence in communication skills not only for their time in School but also to prepare them for working life. We ensure pupils have opportunities in all subjects to discuss, challenge and build on other points of view and to develop their formality of language to ensure they can have the confidence to speak to different audiences. Numeracy skills are embedded across the curriculum. All pupils in Years 7 and 8 follow the accelerated reader programme. Additional literacy help includes a paired reading programme, ACE dictionary training for pupils with a dyslexic diagnosis. For those most in need of support, the Accelerated Reader programme is carried on beyond Year 8. A small number of pupils are offered the opportunity in Year 8 to drop one foreign language and follow a specially designed course based upon classical literature to help develop literacy, oracy and cultural capital. The mathematics department make extensive use of Hegarty Maths to augment more traditional teaching methods and teachers have had some specific dyscalculia training to meet the needs of pupils.
- 3.11. At the end of Year 7, a small number of pupils are offered the opportunity to study just one foreign language and have additional literacy support. Many pupils have a clear idea of subjects they like the most and the least by the middle of Year 8 and offering some choice at this stage engages pupils as partners in their learning and leads to improved outcomes. Whilst the School aims to allow significant pupil choice at this stage the options process is mindful of the need for academic rigour. All have to study a language either to GCSE or an NVQ in Global Business communication. All pupils have to study one of French, Geography, German or History. They also have 3 free choices. Sixth form have a free choice of subjects. At both GCSE and in the Sixth Form, timetable blocks are constructed based upon pupil choice rather than being fixed beforehand.
- 3.12. The curriculum will be reviewed regularly to ensure it stays both rigorous and appropriate in a changing world. The reviews will consider the views of pupils and students as well as recent research studies.
- 3.13. There is an extensive programme of extra-curricular clubs, activities and visits which broaden and deepen the pupils' academic, cultural and personal development. The School allocates resources to ensure that pupils are not excluded from these opportunities and experiences by the nature of their needs or disadvantage.
- 3.14. The school has been creating a tutorial programme which enhances personal development across a range of areas.
- 3.15. The School will monitor any changes to legislation and statutory requirements to ensure that the curriculum continues to comply.
